AMOS MECKLEY

He was a veteran of the Civil War, being a member of the 165th Regiment, Pennsylvania Infantry.

Mr. Anders was a veteran of the Civil War, having served under Col. Wm. A. McKellip, in Co. A., 6th Maryland Regiment. He enlisted August 8, 1862, and was mustered out June 20, 1865, leaving an honorable record of nearly three years. He received the nickname of "Dad" while in the army, due to kindness and help to his comrades while on march, and in helping them to bear the hardships of war, and this name clung to him throughout life, as a tribute to his genial disposition.

He leaves a widow and six children: Mrs. Samuel Aulthouse, of Littlestown; Misses Martha and Sadie, at home; William, of near Keyman, and Harry and Luther, of Taneytown. His age was 77 years, 11 months, 5 days.

HURT WHILE COASTING

Lieutenant Steese, a Frequent Visitor here, is Injured.

Lieutenant James Gordon Steese, of the Engineering Corps, an instructor at the Military Academy, at West Point, broke his leg Thursday afternoon when a bobsled carrying a party of officers and their wives collided with an ice wagon. Mrs. George Vidmer, wife of a cavalry captain, and Captain Frederick B. Downing, of the Engineering Corps, also were badly hurt in this accident. Lieutenant Steese is a son of James A. Steese, of Mount Holly Springs, and has been a rather frequent visitor to Gettysburg.

MANY BIRTHDAYS

Isaac Prosser of Latimore township observes Ninety-Ninth Birthday.

Isaac Prosser, of Latimore township, probably the oldest man in this part of the State, celebrated his ninety-ninth birthday last Friday. Up to a short time ago, Mr. Prosser continued active work in his sawmill, but his health is now failing and at the present time is in a very weak condition and cannot leave his bed. Mr. Prosser has always lived the simple life, to which he owes his many years of active service.

APPLE GROWERS TALK OF LAWS

Do not want Apples Included as Food Products in New Cold Storage Bill Consider Combination of Various Associations.

Adams County fruit growers and farmers are concerned in the action of the three representative farm organizations of Pennsylvania, the State Horticultural Association, the Pennsylvania Dairy Union and the Pennsylvania Breeders' Association, which looks toward their combination during the present year. Committees were appointed at York, prior to the adjournment of the annual joint convention of the bodies, to confer on the subject. All are said to be favorable to a merger.

The State's new weights and measures act was criticised by the Horticultural Association in resolutions disapproving of the requirement that the weight of a "supposed bushel" be greater than an actual full bushel. Steps will be taken to have the provision modified.

It was decided by the horticulturists to have their legislative committee take steps to secure a State law for the regulation of the commission business in agricultural produce, to provide protection against "unfair and dishonest methods of some commission men."

The Department of Agriculture of the State was urged to prepare a bulletin suggesting methods of utilizing waste products of the orchard, especially with reference to the manufacture of vinegar.

Cold storage of apples at the point of production, rather than at the market, was advocated by D. N. Minnich, fruit grower and cold storage man well known throughout Adams County's apple belt. He said the chief deterioration in stored apples occurs through delay in getting the fruit from the orchard to the storage plant. He pointed out that re-shipment is also saved in case some other market than the place of storage offers the best prices.

If apples are to be included as food products under the terms of a bill introduced in Congress by Representative McKellar, of Tennessee, to prohibit interstate shipment of such of these as are kept in cold storage two months or longer, the growers of Pennsylvania will be bankrupted and the consumers will be deprived of the fruit for a great portion of the year, it was stated by Mr. Minnich.

CARNEGIE MEDAL

For Father of Eugene Rife, Who Died Trying to Save Friend.

In Thursday's Times we published in the general news columns that William Rife, of Hanover, received a bronze medal from the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission.

This medal was in recognition of the sacrifice of life made by his son, Eugene W. Rife, who, on Sunday, July 7th, was drowned in a quarry hole at Bittinger, while attempting to save the life of George R. Gordon. The boys had gone there to bathe, when Gordon was seized with cramps. Rife went to his rescue, but he probably struck a rock in diving and thereby lost his life.

This is the second medal for heroism awarded to a Hanoverian, Leroy Schmuck having lost his life in trying to save a schoolmate in a fire at Cornell University, some years ago. His father, J. H. Schmuck, also received a bronze medal.

MADE ADDRESS

Dr. Granville Objects to Shortening College Courses.

President Granville made one of the addresses at the meeting of college presidents in Philadelphia on Friday. He opposed the shortening of college courses saying that it must entail a great mental strain, the result of "cramping". Too many instances of "cramping" and lack of thoroughness had come to his attention to warrant a shortening, he said.

"When you overcrowd students with work, you compel many of them to fail absolutely. The student of lesser mentality naturally suffers the most, and you have the sorry spectacle of 'repeaters', students who have failed to grasp the essential points of the subject they have studied the first time."

Dr. Granville was elected trustee of the association.

OTHER PLANK RUMORS AFLOAT

Latest Base Ball Gossip Would Make him Part Owner of Reading Tri-State Team. Claims he Wants to Get Interest in Team.

"With a change of managers for three Tri-State teams old-time rivalry can be looked for along with a sweeping change in the personnel of all the teams," says the Harrisburg Telegraph which continues: "Since there is no likelihood of there being more than six clubs, Reading backers would like to land Eddie Plank as manager. It is said the signing of the Athletics' twirler depends on the decision of Manager Connie Mack."

"Plank wants to break into the minor league game as an owner and this may be his chance."

Efforts had been made to land Jimmy Sheppard as manager of the Reading team but he goes to Toledo. The failure of anything to materialize out of the recently published rumor that Plank might take a part of the Lancaster management leads the wise ones to say that Reading may now be his field. Allentown is without a manager and Conn may resign at Trenton. Heckert will lead York.

INVESTIGATION

Indian School Head Now Known to be Under Attack.

Indian Commissioner Cato Sells and other officials of the Bureau refused to talk about the reports of an investigation of the Carlisle Indian School, but it is known that such an investigation is pending and it is in the hands of Inspector James Linnen.

Superintendent Friedman, of the school, was in Washington Thursday and was at the Indian Bureau. Vague charges against Friedman made in various quarters for several months, of late, it is understood, took formal shape in the hands of agents of the Indian Rights Association and were laid before the Indian Bureau and the Congressional Committee on Indian Affairs.

The charges included insubordination, failure to enforce discipline among the students of the school and general lack of capacity for administering the institution. There is a strong impression that the outcome of the investigation will lead to a change of management.

CHANGE IN CREWS

Sheads-Garvin Crew to Make only One Round Trip Daily.

This week the Reading changed the crews on its passenger trains and now the crew with M. A. Garvin, as conductor, and William Sheads, as engineman, will make one round trip a day, leaving here at 5:55 and returning at 1:45. Others in their crew will be William Sowers, baggage master, and Leroy Markley flagman. The other crew, leaving here at four and returning at 9:05, will have for the present Samuel Weiser as conductor, William Mentzer, engineman, C. M. Sheely, baggage master, and James Tate flagman. The change was made because the hours from 5:55 a. m. to 9:05 p. m. were considered too long for one crew.

FRIGHTENED BY CAP

Horses Dash away with a Three Wheeled Wagon.

Taking fright at the explosion of a cap placed on the nearby railroad track, the double team of Daniel Shealer ran from the blacksmith shop of William Wentz to the Shealer stable, dragging along the wagon from which one of the wheels had been removed for repairs. The one horse fell and was so badly cut that it cannot be worked for several days. The wagon was slightly damaged. The runaway occurred on Friday.

In Gettysburg less than 7 per cent. were the result of this disease during the past year.

LANTERN SLIDES AT INSTITUTES

Adams County Farmers will See in Lantern Slides the Proper Way to Care for their Poultry, Arrange for Annual Institutes.

An innovation will be introduced at the county farmers' institutes this year in the form of stereoscopic pictures illustrating the addresses on poultry raising. C. M. Barnitz will have the work in charge.

Three series of meetings will be held, at York Springs February 13 and 14; at Arendtsville, February 16 and 17; at Fairfield, February 18 and 19.

The different phases of poultry raising will be touched upon in the lectures of Mr. Barnitz. The following is a list of his subjects: "Mother Hen; Her Brood and Their Care," "The Chick from Shell to Maturity," illustrated with lantern slides; "Turkey Raising, How to Succeed," illustrated with lantern slides; "Common Diseases of Poultry; Their Prevention and Cure," "Poultry Parasites; Their Description and Destruction," "Artificial Incubation and Brooding," "Best Farm Breeds and Their Needs," "Feeding for Winter Eggs," "The Modern Poultry House; Its Location, Construction and Furniture," "The Evolution of the Rooster."

In addition to Mr. Barnitz there will be lectures by E. B. Dorsett, of Tioga County, and D. K. Watts, of Clearfield County.

A. L. Martin, deputy secretary of agriculture and director of the farmers' institutes, says that the lanterns are not only entirely satisfactory, but are proving one of the most valuable adjuncts to institute work which has yet been tried. The illustrated lectures are very popular with those who attend the institutes, and the lecturers find it much easier to press home a point than without the picture projected on the screen.

Six portable lantern outfits were placed in service by the farmers' institute managers at the start of the season several weeks ago, and each has been in constant use ever since. The machines are equipped both for electricity and acetylene gas, a tank of gas about half the size of the tank commonly used for automobile headlights going with each outfit. The two methods of lighting, with the folding screen that goes with each outfit, permits pictures to be shown at any night lecture, and often at day lectures, if the room can be darkened.

ANTI-TRUST B' GO TO CONGE

All May be Changed B Committee Finally Reports.

PROMPT ACTION IS LIKELY

Measures Aim to Prevent Interlocking Directorates, Define Restraint of Trade and Unlawful Practices.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Four of the administration anti-trust bills, defining monopoly, prohibiting interlocking directorates, establishing rules for trade relations and creating an interstate trade commission, are now before congress.

White House officials declared that President Wilson neither had approved
nor disapproved the bills. It was said
the bills introduced were not to be regarded as the last word by the administration, or as the explicit desires of the president. It was pointed out that the measures were launched merely as a framework upon which the final legislation would be built and that free criticism by business men
and the country generally of the merits
of the proposals was now wanted.

President Wilson indicated that there would be no legislation at this session relating to the regulation of stock exchanges, and said he looked for public hearings on the anti-trust bills. The four bills now drawn and a fifth measure to regulate the issuance of railway stocks and bonds, represent the administration's program affecting big business for the present.

The interstate trade commission bill
was made public by Senator F. G.
Newlands, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee.

Later Mr. Clayton introduced the interstate trade commission bill in the house of representatives. It was referred to the house interstate commerce committee, of which W. C.
Adamson, of Georgia, is chairman.

This was in accord with the Underwood motion which the house adopted,
giving the interstate commerce committee jurisdiction over the interstate trade commission bill and the proposed railway securities bill, leaving the judiciary committee in command of the consideration and reporting of the Sherman law definitions bill and the trade relations bill.

These measures were introduced in the house by Representative Clayton,
in the form agreed upon in conferences.

Chairman Clayton, of the latter committee, made public the text of the three latter bills. He then issued a statement that these bills had been prepared by a sub-committee of the judiciary committee for submission to
and consideration by the full committee, and that he expected the committee would have hearings upon them
in connection with all other bills introduced and referred to the committee
relating to the same subject.

In the trade relations measure no
provision was made for the prohibition of holding companies as suggested in President Wilson's message, but it was announced that the committee would further consider that phase of the trust regulation program and probably would add a section to the bill. It was explained that the reason for omitting reference to that subject was because neither the president nor administration leaders had determined
just how far the government should go.

One of the noticeable features of the new bills which will serve as the legislative basis of all anti-trust legislation in the recent congress is the effort which has been made to divorce
railroads from coal mining companies.
It is believed that carriers will be compelled to sever their connections
entirely with the anthracite and bituminous coal industries.

Doctors were called and after working
two hours with the patients pronounced them out of danger.

This is the third break in gas mains
to occur in one month, thirty people
having been overcome.

New York, Jan. 24.—Colonel George

PHYSICIAN RAPS "RADIUM HYSTERIA"

Says Element Alone Will Not Cure Cancer.

Washington, Jan. 24.—"The radium
hysteria is a disease that is likely to set back the proper treatment of cancer; and the inevitable failure of radium,
as at present exploited as a
cure, will add acute mental suffering
to the physical tortures resulting from the disease."

This was the declaration of Dr.
Francis D. Donoghue, of Massachusetts, in a brief filed with the house committee on mines and mining endorsing secretary of the Interior Lane's proposal to withdraw the radium bearing lands of the west from public entry.

Dr. Donoghue said further:
"Radium is not a cure and probably never will be a cure alone for cancer.
Rather than develop the unknown and uncertain value of radium it would be better to establish institutes for the treatment of cancer by the combined
methods of known values; first, ther-motherapy; second, surgery; third,
ray treatment by radium and X-ray;
fourth, by the use of various forms of radio-energy."

The committee had under consideration a statement of Joseph M. Flannery, of Pittsburgh, owner of Colorado
lands containing radium-bearing ores and opponent of Lane's plan, to the effect
that the conservation policy not only
would retard the proper development
of the cancer cure, but would postpone cheaper radium.

Flannery told the committee that radium has a by-product, unnamed and undeveloped, which will revolutionize
the yield of the soil and greatly lower the high cost of living. He asserts that the mixing of this by-product with fertilizer improves both the size and the quality of growing plants.

A cabbage, according to the witness,
will improve 300 per cent in quality
and size if grown with this fertilizer.
Corn has been improved in experimental work 100 per cent; wheat, 65 per cent; beans, 33 per cent, and other vegetables have shown gratifying results, according to Flannery.

SAY JUDGE SPEER ALLOWED BIG FEES

Witness Declares He Favored
Son-in-Law's Firm.

PROBING MISCONDUCT CHARGE

It is Intimated U. S. Jurist Is Addicted to Drug Habit—Defendant Causes Scene.

Macon, Ga., Jan. 24.—United States
Attorney Akerman appeared before
the members of the house judiciary committee investigating charges of misconduct against Federal Judge Emory Speer.

"Do you know anything concerning the charge that Judge Speer is addicted to the drug habit?" asked Mr.
Webb, the chairman.

"Not of my own knowledge," replied the witness. "I can only give you the opinion of a lawyer. I have frequently observed the judge grow irritable, restless and impatient; that
on such occasions he would recess his court and go to chambers for five or ten minutes, when he would remount
the bench with his old time vigor."

That Judge Speer would leave his judicial district every year from July 1 to Nov. 1 was also asserted by witnesses.

Akerman testified that in a bankruptcy case fees that he considered
excessive were allowed by Judge
Speer to the firm of Talley & Heyward, the former being at one time
private secretary to Judge Speer, and the latter his son-in-law. When he protested that the fees were much more liberal than allowed his own firm, also participants in the litigation, Akerman declared that Judge Speer said his son-in-law was in need of money.

"The judge then asked me," said Akerman, "if the court raised my firm's fees would we withdraw our objections to Talley & Heyward's fees.
The judge allowed an increase of $175,000 in our fee, but declined to cut the fee allowed Talley & Heyward."

The witness declared that an estrangement between himself and Judge Speer had been caused by his refusal to recommend the appointment of Judge Speer's son-in-law as assistant United States attorney. Since the estrangement he charged he had been able to win few cases in Judge Speer's court, a fact which he attributed to Judge Speer's activity in directing the case into channels which handicapped
the government's prosecution.

Aroused by Akerman's testimony,
Judge Speer for the first time since the investigation began attempted to address the committee. The jurist sprang to his feet, with his attorneys plucking at his coat sleeves and ad-monishing him to be seated.

"Your honors, if you please, I have sat quietly here and listened to misrepresentations which have been heaped upon me. Just a minute—"

"Judge," broke in Mr. Webb, the chairman, "I suggest that you have your counsel make any remarks you wish make."

"I am a lawyer myself," replied
Judge Speer.

Webb refused to allow the jurist to proceed.

Philadelphia, Jan. 24.—A gruesome tragedy came to light when the bodies
of a woman and two men were found in a room at 1833 Ridge avenue.

Their deaths, caused by gas, must

The other man and woman were not identified.

In the room were many empty beer

partly dressed. All were lying on a bed. The police advance the theory that O'Brien turned on the gas after all were overcome with drink.

LONE BANDIT ROBS PASSENGER TRAIN

Compels Porter to Act as His Bagman in Sleeper.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—With the assistance of a badly scared porter, a lone bandit robbed four passengers on the rear sleeper of the Michigan Central passenger train due here from Detroit.

It was a serio-comic affair, which netted the robber something under $300. He entered the train at Jackson, Mich., and left it about fifteen minutes later, when Louis Thoms, a porter, signaled for the emergency brakes.

T. Meritts, porter of the car attacked, was the first to see the robber,
who pointed a pistol at him and handed him a bag.

"Here," said the fellow, who was dressed in a black and white check suit and wore a cap pulled down over his eyes, "you go ahead and wake the passengers. Tell 'em there's a robber wants their money. No monkey business, I've got three or four pals with me."

Meritts took the bag—or hat, he is not sure which, but thinks it was a bag—and shook the occupant of the first berth he came to.

"Excuse me, sir," said the porter,
"but there's a man here says give him
your money."

"Ow, shut up; quit your kidding and let me sleep," came an angry reply
from the berth.

"Tell him I'm a real robber with a gun," interposed the bandit, who then poked his weapon between the curtains, whereat there was a tinkle of coins falling into the receptacle in the porter's hands.

There were about twenty passengers
in the car and most of them didn't know that anything had happened until they arose.

MINE WORKERS EXPULSION

Local of Pocahontas, W. Va., Charged With Spying.

FAVOR OLD AGE PENSIONS

Indianapolis Convention Adopts Resolution For Federal Aid For Mothers.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 24.—On the charge that it was an organization maintained by a detective agency solely to get a spy into the convention, local union 979, of Pocahontas, W. Va., was expelled by the convention of the United Mine Workers of America, in session here.

M. D. Whitesell, the detective accredited to the union, was not in the convention hall when the action was taken.

The attack on the union was started by A. R. Watkins, of Yorkville, O., who declared that it was dangerous for a union miner to appear in the neighborhood of Pocahontas.

"Show the spy to us and we'll take care of him," declared Thomas Cairns, of Charleston, W. Va. While it was stated in the convention that it had been impossible to obtain any information against the union, the resolution to expel it from the organization was adopted unanimously.

The convention voted to further a campaign for federal old age and mothers' pension laws, and for liability and compensation laws.

Carpenters employed in and about the mines must give up their membership in the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and affiliate with the miners, according to a resolution that was adopted. It was pointed out that since the miners had taken a stand for industrial unionism it was the duty of the miners to include every workman employed about the mines in their organization.

The question of the consolidation of the United Mine Workers of America with the Western Federation of Miners was brought up, but was postponed until the fraternal delegates from the metal miners could be heard on the subject.

The proposition for the formation of a national labor party, as proposed at the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor, was voted down without debate. The convention already has adopted a resolution stating that the laboring people should unite on the political field.

The convention went on record as favoring the bill presented to the lower house of congress which would legalize agreements between employers and employees and would limit the issuance of injunctions in certain cases. The question of restricting immigration came up, but it was put over until a copy of the bill introduced in the senate by Senator Dillingham, of Vermont, had been received and investigated.

MRS. WILSON CLAIMS LAND

President's Wife Tells of Buying Disputed Property For $3000.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president, paid $3000 for sixty acres of land in the Coachella Valley, which is the subject of a contest in the United States land office here.

Mrs. Wilson so informed Homer L. Giddard, one of the rival claimants, in a letter written from Pass Christian, Miss., on Jan. 9. She added that she had paid taxes on the land for three years. The correspondence was introduced in evidence.

During the time the president's wife was paying taxes on the land, however, title to it never had been perfected by John T. King, the original locator, who had acquired it by means of state land scrip. Learning of this, Mrs. Maude Compton Hensie filed a homestead entry, which she sold later to Homer L. Giddard.

It developed that the president's wife had made a good bargain, provided her title to the land was established. Witnesses estimated the present value of the tract at $8000.

While Mrs. Wilson's letter stated that she is the owner of the land, a deed introduced in the hearing vests the title in the president himself.

WOMAN SUES EX-ARMY OFFICER FOR $10,000

Claims He Adopted Her When She Was 21 Years Old.

May's Landing, N. J., Jan. 24.—Testimony of a highly sensational nature marked the trial of the suit of Miss Ellen Cornell, a music teacher, of Philadelphia, against Colonel Louis Orleman, a retired army officer and former superintendent of Peekskill Military academy, to recover $14,000 for services as housekeeper, covering a period of eleven years.

Miss Cornell claims that Colonel Orleman adopted her eleven years ago when she was twenty-one years old. She says there was an understanding between them that she was to care for him and she was to receive an equal share in his estate after death.

However, Colonel Orleman's wife, who had been separated from him during the time that he was with the plaintiff, brought proceedings to test his sanity and the court set aside the contract of adoption.

At that time Miss Cornell left his house and received no pay for her services during this time. A house which had been conveyed to her by her aged admirer was returned to the estate by the courts, on the ground that Orleman was insane at the time the title was transferred.

The witness also declared that she had been forced to leave the house if Atlantic City by the son, who gained his father's ear for a time, and that she had been defrauded of $4000 worth of bonds, which her benefactor had given her.

Judge Weacott moved for a non-suit on the ground that she had testified that she had left his house, which was a violation of the contract of adoption. The plaintiff contended that she had not left of her own accord, but had been driven out by the son and mother.

The court denied the motion.

ONE OF THE QUAINTEST, MOST BECOMING MODES IS THE PANNIER

It is quite natural with the vogue of old fashioned looking flowered silks, moires and taffetas, that the pannier should appear. The effect is brought about in many ways: the draped overskirt, the puffed overskirt and the double or triple ruffle about the hips vie for favor with the wired or corded tunic. Some form of overskirt is seen on most of the frocks.

Just at the moment there are few tailored frocks and suits to be seen; the gowns are all more or less dressy and are suitable for afternoon or evening. The simple little one-piece frock is still favored for shopping and morning wear but for afternoons, soft draped effects, frills and flounces, are the order of the day.

Number 8147 is of chiffon taffeta in that new perle blue; the blouse is kimono, the skirt is a two-piece model with a draped overskirt in panner effect.

In size 36 this costume requires 6 1/2 yards of 36-inch material.

It is well worth taking a good deal of pains to keep a young horse from indulging in its first runaway owing to the fact of common observation that a horse that has run away once is more likely to run away again than it was before.

An Ohio farmer, a resident of Crawford county, was until recently the owner of a turkey that weighed eighty pounds and had won many prizes in nearby shows. He was fattening the bird for his own Christmas dinner when it died of fatty degeneration of the heart.

Owing to the possibility which exists of the breaking out of a fire in house, barn or other outbuildings, it is a matter of advantage if the buildings are not placed so closely together that one will be ignited by any building adjacent to it. It is bad enough to have either house or barn burn. It is a double hardship when both are consumed.

A little Kansas girl seven years old, of the name of Leta Moore, whose parents live on a farm near Oberlin, recently scored 91 in a breadmaking contest held in connection with the farmers' institute of the county in which she lives. A further interesting fact about this little miss is that she is said to excel in the doing of other work about the house.

Some of the everyday facts having to do with fish and some other cold blooded creatures seem little short of miraculous. Such, for instance, is the freezing of fish not otherwise injured, the shipment of them across the country and their later apparent return to life when thawed out. This suspension of the vital functions is a marvel that is noted, but little understood.

The Chinese sacred lily, which is coming to be a favorite holiday house flower, is at home in the valley of the Yellow river, in China, where the soil, moisture and temperature conditions seem to be perfect. Attempts that have been made to propagate the bulbs of this lily in America have resulted in bulbs of not more than a fifth the size of those grown in China.

While the location of the home and outbuildings at somewhere near the center of the farm may have its drawbacks, it nevertheless gives the advantage of shorter trips into the different fields, and during the year this amounts to a good deal. It appears in the hauling of crops to crib, barn, storehouse or cellar and in the trips made daily to the cultivated fields during the growing season.

A simple, painless and inexpensive method of dehorning calves is by the use of caustic potash before the calf is three weeks old. The hair just above the embryo horn should be clipped.

TO THE OTHER ONE

Man and Woman of World Go Back to Elemental for Mates.

By DOROTHY DIX.

It was the eve of his wedding day, and Richard Airle sat alone in his luxurious room, thinking. The last detail of the arrangements had been completed. The night before he had given his farewell bachelor dinner to his old companions. Somehow he felt that it would be almost a sacrilege to go from that mad, gay feast, with its wit and wine and song, to his pure, little puritan Priscilla, who had been kept as untouched by the world as a snow drop in her prime New England home.

"I will see nobody tonight," he had said to the dusky buttons who guarded the outer door of the fashionable apartment house. He wanted to be alone. There was so much to do, so many letters to burn, so many pictures to destroy, so many links with the old life to break. Not that there was anything to cover up, or be ashamed of. Airle had lived cleanly, but his friends had been the men and women of Bohemia, and—Priscilla would not understand.

He glanced about the beautiful room, littered with artistic souvenirs and trifles, and sighed as his glance fell upon a photograph of "For Dear Dickie" scrawled across its face. It showed a little dancing girl in short, spangled skirts, waiting her cue to go on the stage. No, Priscilla would not understand.

"And yet," mused Airle, "an honest little creature never lived. By George, I wonder how many of the good women who draw their garments away from her as they pass her, would have the courage to go cold and hungry, as she has done, when they might have champagne and terrapin, and soles for the taking?"

On the mantel shelf, in a quaint, gold frame, was another picture—a bold, Impressionistic sketch of a woman leaning back in a long chair, the blue smoke of a cigarette curling about her red gold hair. The woman's lips were curved with laughter, her eyes shone out merry, mocking, tender. It was Madge Horton, the cleverest newspaper woman of her day, just as Boothby had drawn her in that very room one night when a party of friends—writers, artists, actors, musicians—had gathered together to celebrate the good fortune of one of them.

"Priscilla would not understand Madge either," Airle repeated to himself. "She would think that a woman who smoked cigarettes, and treated men with the familiarity of a companion, instead of the awe of a demigod, or the romantic adoration of a hero, wasn't nice."

He smiled at the inadequateness of the world, for his mind had flown back to a dark page in his own life, when he had quarreled with the rich and tyrannical old aunt who had reared him, and he had come to New York to make his living. It was then that he had first known Madge, when they were both doing "cub work" on an evening paper. Fortune had not smiled on him at first, and there had been an evil hour when, after six weeks in the hospital with typhoid, he had found himself facing the world without a dollar in his pocket.

Weak, discouraged, dispirited, he lay on his cot, dreading to take up the struggle of life again, when a letter was brought to him. It was a mere typewritten line, enclosing $100, and signed in a hand so crabbed as to be undecipherable. "Dear Airle," it said, "I return you the money you lent me once in Chicago when I was down on my luck." In his prosperity Airle had lent many a man money that had never been returned. The wonder of it was that it should come to him now, but in the surprise and delight of having it, for the two crisp fifty-dollar bills meant hope, and courage and life to him, he almost forgot to speculate about the sender, and it was not until years afterwards that he knew that Madge out of her slender salary, for fame and money had not come to her then, either, had been the one to reach out a helping hand in a way that he could not refuse to take.

"The heart of a woman and the brain of a man, God bless her," said Airle, "and yet Priscilla will not think her 'nice.'"

"A lady to see you, sir, and she says it's important, sir, and I was to give you this card, sir," deprecatingly interrupted a servant. Airle frowned as he reached out his hand for the card, and smiled as he read the name on it.

"Madge, so good of you," he exclaimed as he pushed the long chair she affected up to the grate.

"I was just on my way out to dinner," she replied, throwing back the long cloak and showing a slight, tall figure clad in a thin, black dinner gown, "and as I was passing I remembered that this was your last night, and I thought I would drop in and say a final goodbye to you."

"You speak as if I was going to die," objected Airle.

"So you are, as far as your old friends are concerned," she returned. "Matrimony is that bourne from which a man never comes back to those who loved and lost him. A wife's first duty, you know, is to snub all of her husband's former companions. Yours, for instance," with a saucy moue at him, "won't approve of my dropping in to smoke a cigarette with you, and talk things over when they lie heavy on my mind, and—and—it came to me, as I was passing, that I should—miss it—Dick."

Airle murmured an indistinct something about hoping that she and Priscilla would be good friends.

"Don't," interrupted the woman sharply, "between a man's wife and his women friends there is a great gulf fixed, and they are wisest who do not attempt to cross it. I—I am glad you are going to marry, Dick, and I am glad its Priscilla. You are very masculine, Dick, and she is the kind of clinging, ignorant, appealing little creature that was bound to be your ideal. I understand the fascination of that kind of woman—the sort of woman who has been kept safe and sheltered in her home, like a pearl in cotton wool, and who has never known anything of the hard and sordid struggle for bread, or the temptations and the fight of life."

"They are like white lilies that the dust has never smirched," said the man softly, "and we who are toiling in the grimy lift worshipping eyes upon them."

"Yes," she replied, "it is the woman who does not know, and does not understand—who never understands—before whom a man pours out the intense of his soul. It is just because she is so ignorant of all that makes the life of man like you that such a woman fascinates him."

"When I first saw Priscilla," Airle said, "she was coming down a daisy strewn path in the early morning, and the young day was not more fresh and fair, nor the flowers about her feet whiter, or more innocent than she. I was sick of women with painted faces, and the turmoil of the town, of women who talked in epigram, who could analyze to the last hair the psychic interest of the latest problem play, and she came like a vision of the heaven we worldlings have lost."

"Marrying an angel is a risky experiment for a mortal," returned the woman with a grim humor, "and, did you ever think, Dick, that what we call a 'good woman' is the best thing on earth, and the narrowest and hardest? Oh," she held up her hand as he began to speak, "I know what you are going to say—that women like I am are brave and helpful and strong and companionable. That is true, Dick, but men like you do not fall in love with us. We know too much. We have rubbed shoulders with sin, and misery and we are no longer shocked at things. We are only sorry—or amused. We see things like men see them, and so, I understand, that when a man like you meets a woman who has never touched a cocktail, or smoked a cigarette, or seen a problem play, or read a novel that wasn't an expurgated edition, her very ignorance and innocence grips him with its charm—its difference."

"You haven't wanted to marry me, Dick, and I haven't wanted to marry you, for in a way we have both wanted to go back to the elemental. Your ideal has been innocence and ignorance. Mine, the strength that one could cling to as to the rock of ages. You have found your pure, prim little Puritan Priscilla. I have found—and she broke off to strip the long long glove from her hand and show a gleaming diamond.

"What, you are going to be married, too?" cried Airle.

She nodded. "No one you know. A man I knew years ago, out west—a primitive creature, with aboriginal ideas of right and wrong and duty, and faithfulness, who has not learned to console himself for a broken heart by analyzing its throbs for a magazine article, as we have, or to dissect his friends in the interest of psychological study. We have our virtues you and I, Dick, and those of our kinship—we are merry and open handed, and we laugh with those who laugh and cry with those who weep but one can't live on omelette soufflé always, you know, and one wants a grander strain to march through life than the music of cap and bells."

"You and I—we shall be very happy, Dick, in our new lives, but don't you think—don't you fear that sometimes we shall be very tired? Won't there be times when our hearts shall be heavy for the old life? When the grand opera will get upon our nerves, and make us long for opera comique? When the ignorance and innocence of your Priscilla will be dust and ashes in your teeth, and the rock ribbed seriousness of my husband will be a burden on my soul?"

"Then—ah then, Dick—we will long for the old life, the old discussions, the old friends who were broken reeds on whom to lean, but who sang the merry roundelay of life in the same key that we did, and understood our speech. We shall have what we want, but not all we want, for somewhere in every heart is the lurking shadow of that other one who could supply the missing note to make the perfect harmony. Oh, the pathos of it! Oh, the helplessness of it!"

She got up abruptly and began drawing on her cloak, and as she stretched her hand out in farewell Airle stopped her.

"Before you go," he said, "drink a stirrup cup with me." He filled two glasses from the wine jug upon the table, and the man and woman looked solemnly into each other's eyes as they touched glasses.

"To the Other One," he said.

"To the Other One," she murmured, and then with a common impulse they sent the crystal goblets shivering on the floor.

MRS. STOVER IS SERIOUSLY HURT

Mrs. Simon Stover, of McKnightstown, in Critical Condition from Injuries Received in Automobile Accident. Other Mishaps.

Mrs. Simon P. Stover, of McKnightstown, is lying in a critical condition at her home as the result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident on Sunday when her son, Dr. James G. Stover, of Bendersville, ran his automobile into a gutter, upsetting and throwing out his father, his mother and himself.

The accident occurred on the road between McKnightstown and Arendtsville. Dr. Stover and his father were unhurt and were able to go back with the badly battered machine while Mrs. Stover was taken home in a team.

This morning she was reported in a critical condition, suffering a great deal of pain and showing alarming symptoms.

Struck by Axe

Joseph Roller, of York Springs, was painfully hurt one day recently when he was cut on the head by the sharp edge of an axe. Mr. Roller was splitting some wood when the axe caught in a clothes line and, as it rebounded, caught him on the forehead, knocking him to the ground and cutting a gash several inches in length. A heavy woolen cap saved him from more serious injury. He was taken to the office of a physician where his injuries were attended to and he is now getting along nicely.

Fell through Canopy

Chester Mummert, of Harrisburg, well known about York Springs, had a narrow escape from being killed when he plunged through the glass canopy over the sidewalk at the Majestic Theatre. He is an usher there and walked out on the glass canopy to change the sign when the glass gave way and he fell to the pavement fifteen feet below. His right heel caught in the broken glass and checked his descent. He was taken to the Harrisburg hospital but no open wounds could be found but he is probably suffering from internal injuries.

Runaway

The team belonging to Walter Dick, of Dillsburg, freed itself from a post in York Springs to which it had been hitched and ran several miles before it was caught. The affair occurred on Sunday when there were many teams on the road. All gave the runaway a wide berth and no damage was done to horse, harness or vehicle.

CAPTAIN ALVAREZ

Paul Gilmore and Associate Players, in Their Great New York Success.

The management of Walter's Theatre in which Paul Gilmore is to present "Captain Alvarez", H. S. Sheldon's great new romantic drama on December 31 gives a positive guarantee that this is one of the best attractions that has ever appeared here. This guarantee was made after having read the newspaper clippings from other cities where this company has appeared, all testifying to the merit of the production, though an acquaintance with Mr. Gilmore's work in former years and a firm conviction of the worth of all his former productions, should in itself carry weight sufficient to justify a guarantee of this attraction.—advertisement

COMMISSIONERS FAIL TO ELECT

Many Want Office of Sealer of Weights and Measures. Choice Narrows Down to Three Candidates. Each Gets One Vote.

The Adams County Commissioners at their meeting on Tuesday took three more ballots on the candidates for the newly created office of Sealer of Weights and Measures. The three ballots all resulted in one vote each for these three men, Horace W. Kline, of Union township; Harry Martin, of Menallen township; George Raffensperger, of Straban township.

One week ago the commissioners started voting on the question and six ballots were taken. During the voting at least ten candidates received a vote but now the fight has narrowed down to the three which received consideration on Tuesday.

Since the passage of the law providing for this new office there has been interest all over the county in the possible candidates who would try to be the first to hold the position. It will be one of importance covering almost every mercantile business in the county, regulating the number of pounds to bushels of grains and foodstuffs, and so on. The work will be more or less complicated and extensive until it has been thoroughly systematized and the man who is elected will find the position a more or less difficult one until all the merchants learn just how the law is to operate.

It was suggested that several counties might combine and elect one officer for two or three districts but this was not deemed advisable here and Adams County will have its own official. The law prescribes that his salary shall not be less than $1000 and expenses.

HAGERSTOWN REVIVAL

May Get Dr. Biederwolf at Maryland Town this Winter.

The Hagerstown Ministerial Union has been wrestling with the question as to whether Rev. Dr. W. E. Biederwolf the evangelist, who the last fall held a large meeting at Chambersburg, when between 1,500 and 2,000 persons were converted, would be engaged to conduct a union evangelistic meeting there.

Some calculating has been done by those having the matter in charge. The cost would be about $3,200, probably about half of this sum to be used in erecting a tabernacle, which must have a capacity of at least 5,000 people. Dr. Biederwolf asks only for the collection taken on the last Sunday for himself.

THE following merchants will close every Wednesday and Friday evening at 6:00, beginning Friday, January 1st: C. H. Klepper, H. W. Trostel and Son, M. E. Knouse, and E. G. Lower, Thomas Brothers, J. H. Seasey, S. G. Bigham and G. H. Knouse will close at 6:30.—advertisement

PLAN TO ERECT MANY COTTAGES

Twenty Cottages to be Erected in Connection with the New Blue Mountain House. Western Maryland Officials' Homes.

A new summer colony will be established on the mountain about Pen Mar next year.

As has been told the Blue Mountain House property, consisting of the site of the burned hotel and about 400 acres of land, has been purchased by a number of capitalists who will erect a new hotel and sell building lots off their large acreage.

The new hotel will be of concrete and will be erected on the foundation of the old structure. It will contain two hundred rooms, about half as many as the old hotel but will have a very large dining room.

It will be complete in every particular, with all the modern improvements that go with the newest hotels, and it is expected that it will draw a large patronage from Baltimore and from Pittsburgh and cities farther west on the Western Maryland Railway's connecting lines.

The new summer colony will be made up principally of Western Maryland officials and their friends. Their plan is to purchase or lease land near the hotel and erect thereon cheap houses with wooden frames and oiled paper walls and wooden floors—houses that can be quickly put up and as quickly taken down.

These they will use for living quarters only. Their meals will be taken at the Blue Mountain House and the large new dining room is in great part due to the patronage that will come from these cottages or bungalows.

It is expected that at least twenty of these bungalows will be erected and occupied next summer.

CASHTOWN

Cashtown—Fire on Saturday afternoon burned over several acres of timberland about Rock Top. G. W. Biesecker and several of his men hurried to the scene when the fire was discovered and succeeded in putting it out after hard work. Most of the people were attending sales nearby and the men had a big task, but fortunately there was no wind. A carelessly dropped match is supposed to have started the blaze.

On Monday Mrs. John B. Ketterman, of Hilltown, received a handkerchief shower from friends who remembered her birthday. She received sixty four handkerchiefs and several other much appreciated presents.

The Christmas exercises at Flohr's church will be held Thursday evening. The Cashtown church exercises will be held Friday evening.

WILSON SIGNS CURRENCY BILL

Approves Measure in Presence of Democratic Leaders.

IT IS NOT YET EFFECTIVE

New System of Banks Must First Be Organized and Board Appointed.
Provisions of Measure.

Washington, Dec. 24.—The new currency bill, over which congress has haggled and quarreled since April 7,
in extra session, became a law when
it was formally signed by President Wilson.

The bill does not become effective,
however, until the new system of
banks has been organized.

The bill was passed by the senate
after a virulent debate, rushed over to the house, where Speaker Clark affirmed his signed approval, and was then hurried to the White House.
There, however, it was held up in order that the president's signature
might be witnessed by the Democratic leaders. The majority of the members of the cabinet, members of the senate and house committees on banking and currency, Mrs. Wilson, the Misses Elleanor and Margaret Wilson and Mrs.
Owen were present at the ceremony.

Less than five minutes after the bill
had been passed both houses of congress had adjourned until Jan. 12.
Later President Wilson left for Pass
Christian, Miss, for a three weeks' vacation.

Following are the important features
of the new banking and currency bill:
Authorizes at least eight regional reserve associations, each with a regional bank. Will probably be twelve.

Constitutes secretary of the treasury,
secretary of agriculture and the comptroller of the currency an organization commission to fix boundaries
of districts and reserve cities.

Entire system under control of federal reserve board of seven members,
secretary of the treasury and comptroller of the currency, ex-officio, and
five others, appointed by the president.

National banks must signify intention to join association within sixty days or they cannot act as reserve
agents thereafter.

Must come within a year or forfeit
charter.

State banks may join by meeting
requirements for federal inspection.

Capital stock of regional reserve associations, $100,000,000, or 6 per cent
of capital and surplus of all national banks.

Stock open to the national banks
first and then to public.

Dividends on regional bank stock 6
per cent.

Advantages of new system will give expansive or elastic currency, facilitated by the ready mobilization of reserves.

Will prevent panics.

Authorizes government, through federal reserve banks, to issue collateral
approved by federal reserve board,
redeemable at treasury in gold and
at regional banks in gold or lawful
money, at election of banks.

Requires gold reserves of 40 per cent in treasury department against outstanding reserve notes; provides tax against depletion.

Regional reserve banks each managed by nine directors, three chosen
by federal reserve board, six elected
by member banks, but three of whom shall not be bankers.

WMAS GIFT EXPLODES

Woman Hurls Bomb From Her In-
Time to Save Her Life.

New Orleans, Dec. 24.—A peculiar rattle from the inside of what appeared to be an innocent Christmas gift alarmed Mrs. John Taranto here, and she flung the package away from her and ran.

A moment later it exploded. Somebody had sent her a bomb through the mails, and she released the percussion mechanism when she removed the outer cover. She reached another room in safety, but the explosion did much damage to the house.

Mrs. Taranto told the police her suspicions as to the handwriting on the wrapper, and they are looking for the husband, from whom she has been separated two years. A similar package, sent by messenger last year, Mrs.
Taranto refused to receive.

SWEETHEARTS PART AT SCHMIDT TRIAL

Girl Rebuked For Attending
Case and Jilted.

New York, Dec. 24.—Morbidity increased in the trial of Hans Schmidt for the murder of Anna Anshutz brought an emotional tragedy to the door of the court room, and as a result one fastionably dressed young woman, who has never missed a minute of the trial since it started, was absent from her seat.

Shortly after the trial was resumed,
while Dr. Smith E. Jelliffe, the leading attorney for the defense, was under cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney DeLoach, Thomas
Flanagan, captain of the court officers,
told the young woman, whose regular attendance at the trial has created
some comment, that a young man desired to speak to her in the corridor.
The girl turned pale and left the court room. At the door she was met by a clean cut young man.

"You lied to me, Helen," he said.
"I've caught you at it. You said you were not attending this trial, and now I've found you here. Give me back the engagement ring. Our engagement is broken."

The girl went hysterically and pleaded that she had done nothing wrong,
but the young man refused to be plac-
ated.

"No, I will have nothing more to do with you," he insisted. "You may keep the ring if you wish, but our engagement is broken. Any girl who would come to a trial like this day after day and fill her mind with the filth
of such testimony as is offered here is not fit to be any man's wife."

The girl pleaded in vain for a reconciliation and begged that there be no scene there, but the young man
left the building, the girl following.

CONFESSES HE KILLED CHILD

After Admission Jury Finds Man
Guilty of Assault and Battery.

New York, Dec. 24.—Bernard Fagan,
who two years ago ran for alderman
in Brooklyn against Adolf Kline, the present mayor of New York, admitted
in the witness stand in court in Jersey City that on the night of Oct. 21
he shot eight-year-old Joseph Crowley
to death.

The child was shot down while he and other boys were playing about a bonfire, and for a time it was thought
he had been slain by a madman.

"Yes; I shot that boy," said Fagan,
and I have been sorely grieved ever since. I own valuable property in that neighborhood and have suffered heavy loss because of the pranks of boys."

The jury returned with a verdict of assault and battery. Judge Tennant thought some mistake had been made
and asked the foreman to repeat the jury's findings.

"I never heard of such a ridiculous
verdict," said the judge. "How twelve intelligent men could have come to such an agreement is beyond me. It is a travesty on justice. This jury is discharged without the thanks of the court and excused from further service at this time."

West safely to shore. The bodies were

Plains, N. Y., had a narrow escape.
McLaughlin fell into the water. In

WILSON'S GIFT TO ARTIST'S WIDOW

Appoints Her Postmistress at Fort Washington, Pa.

MISS WILSON INTERESTED

She Studied Art Under Woman's Husband in Philadelphia—Other Postal Appointments.

Philadelphia, Dec. 24.—President
Wilson played Santa Claus, and as a personal Christmas gift to Mrs. Edle R. Anshutz, widow of Thomas P. An-shutz, one of the greatest of American artists, gave her the appointment
as postmistress at Fort Washington,
near here.

Miss Eleanor Wilson, the president's youngest daughter, studied art at the Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia. Mr. Anshutz was a member of the faculty there for thirty years.

Mrs. Anshutz, at her home at Fort Washington, received the news of her appointment with delight. By a coincidence she was discussing her chances for the position with a visitor just at the moment when she was informed that her name had been sent to the senate for confirmation.

"That is the most delightful Christmas gift I could have received," she said.

Mrs. Anshutz's appointment was urged by artists all over the country
who had studied under her husband,
who has been recognized as one of the greatest "makers" of painters.

Mrs. Anshutz made application for the position through Congressman
Robert B. Dwyer, and as soon as it became known that she desired the appointment the president and Postmaster General Burleson were showered with letters and telegrams endorsing her application. In making the appointment, however, the president
regarded it as a personal Christmas gift.

Henry Walter, whose nomination as postmaster at Riverside, N. J., was sent to the senate by President Wilson, is the first Democrat to fill that office in Riverside for eight years.

John Lodge, whose nomination as postmaster at Paulsboro, N. J., was sent to the senate by President Wilson, is in the freight business and during the summer is in the Dock street
market in Philadelphia. He succeeds Wilson D. Gill, a Republican, who has filled the post for several years.

Joseph F. McDonald, whose nomination as postmaster of Jenkintown, Pa.,
was sent to the senate, is a druggist.
He is now serving his second term in the Jenkintown council.

WANT LONG-TAILED PIGS

They Are Used by Scientists to Fight
Hog Cholera.

East Lansing, Mich., Dec. 24.—Pigs
with long tails will find a welcome
this winter at the Michigan Agricultural college, where they are needed
by the bacteriological department in its work of fighting hog cholera, which has been ravaging the swine herds of Michigan.

The pig, or rather his tail, sought
by the college, is wanted for serum purposes. Serum, to protect hogs from cholera, is made at the college by taking it from the blood of pigs which have developed immunity from the disease.

The selected pigs are bled at the tail, and can be bled as often as there is any tail left to bleed, explaining why the porker with a long tail is an advantage. Porkers of the highest class are required.

WEDS MAN SHE NEVER SAW

Eaton Girl Marries Man Who Advertised or Wife.

Nazareth, Pa., Dec. 24.—Without having seen the man she was to wed,
Miss Emma L. Wagner, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Wagner, of Easton, was married to Thomas Jackson Marley, of the state of Washington, at the parsonage of St. John's Reformed church
by Rev. Dr. W. H. Wotring.

Mr. Marley, whose first wife is dead, has three sons. He advertised in the newspapers for a wife, Miss Wagner
replied, they exchanged photographs
and the wedding followed.

Father Bradley Now Prelate.

Emmitsburg, Md., Dec. 24.—Very Rev. Bernard J. Bradley, LL. D., president of St. Mary's college, at this place, has been appointed a domestic prelate, with the title of monsignor,
by Pope Pius. The papal brief was received by Dr. Bradley from Cardinal Gibbons.

Malays Kill U. S. Botanist.

Manila, P. I., Dec. 24.—C. B. Robinson, a botanist in the science section of the department of the interior of the Philippine Islands, has been put to death by the natives of Ambonza Island, in the Malay Archipelago. Mr.
Robinson was engaged in botanical researches on the island.

Charity Gifts For 1913 $50,135,476.

New York, Dec. 24.—Charitable gifts
in the United States in the last twelve months amount to $50,135,476, or at the rate of $2.91 for every tick of the clock. The bequest of Benjamin Altman, valued at $15,430,000, to the Metropolitan Museum, of New York, heads
the list.

Ignorant India.

native vernaculars. Nevertheless there are 635 newspapers and 1,962
periodicals published there.

JAPANESE TARS TO ENTER MEXICO CITY

Marines and Bluejackets to Pay a "Visit."

Mexico City, Dec. 24.—It is stated
here that the marines and bluejackets
from the Japanese cruiser Izumo which arrived at Manzanillo, are coming to the Federal capital "merely on a visit." The visit is to be of several days' duration.

President Huerta revived the old custom of celebrating at the national palace with great formality the anniversary of the birth of the chief executive. Huerta was born on Dec. 23, 1854. These birthday celebrations were an annual affair during the regime of General Porfirio Diaz.

Being daylight military bands from
the regiments which have their headquarters in the Federal capital marched up and down in front of the palace
and serenaded the provisional president. During the forenoon Huerta received the congratulations of committees representing all departments of the government.

The final event in the day's celebration was a reception of the diplomatic corps, at which all the foreign representatives were present, including Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American
charge d'affaires.

Peoble efforts have been made to arrange holiday festivities this year.
Governor Corona, of the Federal district, has enlisted a few of the city's fashionable women to assist him in holding a kermess in one of the public parks, but even this show of holiday spirit is half apocryphal, it being announced that the proceeds are to go toward buying clothing for the poor.

YORK MAN DEAD IN CRASH

Auto Jumps Bridge Near Louisville Ky., Killing Two.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 24.—The bodies
of Robert L. Gallatin, of York, Pa., salesman for a flour mill, and Louis Wakfield, of Shelbyville, Ky., were found imbedded in the mud on the edge of a small creek in the suburb
of Louisville, victims of an automobile accident.

The automobile struck the railing of
a bridge which crossed the stream
and was dashed to pieces twenty feet
below, pinning the two occupants beneath it.

Save Forty Fishermen.

New York, Dec. 24.—Forty fishermen scrambled off the schooner Seneca in the North river to the tug Daniel Willard just before the schooner, with a big gap in her side sank in twenty-five feet of water. Backing out of her pier
she had been rammed amidships by the tug, owned by the Pennsylvania
Coal company. No one was hurt.

Philately and History.
An interesting chapter in philatelic history, and in the history of Europe, is closed by the decision to suppress the foreign postal agencies in Crete as the result of the union of that island with Greece. Austria, Great Britain, France, Russia, and Italy have all maintained post offices in Crete, as in Turkey, and there is at the moment much speculation in philatelic circles as to whether the Levantine post offices maintained by the powers, among which Germany is also included, will not be closed as well.

Day by Day.
We live by days. They are the leaves folded back each night in the great volume that we write. They are our autobiography. Each day takes us not newly, but as a tale continued. It finds us what yesterday left us; and as we go on, every day is telling to every other day truths about us, showing the kind of being that is to be handed on to it, making of us something better or something worse, as we decide.—J. F. W. Ware.

Small Boy's Essay.
A youthful American citizen for the time being resident in Germany was asked to observe Independence day by writing "a patriotic American composition." Bobby chose "The Cow" for his subject, and this was the essay he turned out: "The cow is an animal. She has two horns and four legs and a tail. Sometimes this tail waves. Long may it wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!"

Popped Corn a Good Food.
A government bulletin says that popped corn is superior to many breakfast foods now on the market. Sometimes it is eaten with milk and sugar. In many farm houses popcorn is considered a necessary adjunct to Christmas festivities, and the ears of the little Tom Thumb variety are particularly popular for Christmas tree decorations.

Unlike Most Visitors.
The perfect baby had reached the age when he could coo, an accomplishment in which he indulged himself most of the time when not otherwise engaged. "He is the most welcome visitor I ever had," said the mother, proudly. "He just lies and talks to me by the hour." "Isn't that nice," replied the caller. "So unlike most visitors—they just talk and lie to you by the hour."

Help Comes Quickly When Hyomei Is Used for Catarrh, Bronchitis or Cold in the Head.

It will banish the disease germs in the nose, throat and lungs and give quick and permanent relief or money refunded by People's Drug Store.

The Hyomei treatment gives a tonic healing effect to the air you breathe, destroys the catarrhal germs, stops the poisonous secretions, soothes the irritated mucous membrane and makes a marked improvement in the general health.

The complete outfit, including inhaler and bottle of liquid, costs $1.00; extra bottles of liquid, if later needed, 50 cents.

Had the Last Word.

Two ladies, during a friendly meeting on the street, got to quarreling about their ages, and used very strong language toward each other. At last, as if to end the dispute, one of them turned away and said in a very conciliatory tone of voice: "Let us not quarrel over the matter any more. I, at least, have not the heart to do it. I never knew who my mother was; she deserted me when a baby, and who knows but that you may have been the heartless parent?"

Gas.

Who first used the word "gas" and why? Merely because of the supposed resemblance of the product of burning carbon to the "chaos" of the Greeks. "This spirit, hitherto unknown," wrote the experimenter Van Helmont in 1648. "I call by the new name gas, and I call it so because, being untamable, it is scarcely distinguishable from the chaos of the ancients." A glimpse at modern gas devices will show how far removed from untamability is the gas of today.

MAY SUSPEND FREE TOLLS

Resolution For Temporary Solution of Panama Canal Snarl.

Washington, Dec. 24.—A joint resolution to suspend conditionally the operation of the provision of the Panama canal act granting free passage to American coastwise vessels was introduced by Representative Adamson, chairman of the house commerce committee.

The suspension would be subject to the following conditions:

"At any time after the Panama canal shall have been opened and successfully operated for two years, if, in the judgment of the president, the revenues derived from tolls of vessels other than those engaged in the coastwise trade of the United States shall be sufficient to defray the cost of maintaining and operating the canal and the expense of government and sanitation of the canal zone and all diplomatic questions touching the treatment of vessels as to conditions or charges of traffic at the canal shall have been adjusted, then the president is authorized to issue an executive order declaring such suspended exemption of full force and effect."

It would further provide that from the date of such an executive order the exemption would be allowed, but until that time vessels of the United States should pay the same tolls as others. The "free toll" provision now is under diplomatic protest.

Chicago Education Board Votes Back Superintendent.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Mrs. Ella Flagg Young was voted back into the superintendency of the Chicago public schools after a stormy session of the board of education.

Seven members refused to vote on the ground that the board had no power to reconsider the election of John D. Shoop, assistant superintendent under Mrs. Young, who had been selected her successor.

Contention also was made that the four new members of the board named by Mayor Harrison to replace the four whose resignations he had enforced, were not entitled to their seats.

The action of the board in removing Shoop and replacing Mrs. Young will be once again challenged in court, it was announced by the opposition.

Mrs. Young's failure to be re-elected two weeks ago by the school board roused a storm of popular indignation. Mass meetings were held and the school board and the mayor's office were besieged by delegations which demanded that Shoop resign and make way for Mrs. Young to come back. The women's organizations, political and civic, were solidly behind the deposed superintendent.

Mayor Harrison asserted that members of the school board appointed by him had voted against Mrs. Young "in an underhand way." He summarily accepted from four members their resignations, which had been placed in his hands when he took office.

QUARREL CAUSED COUCH'S DEATH

Enraged When Woman Wanted to Leave For Holidays.

WEARIED OF HER LIFE

Adelaide Branch Says She Yielded to His Wishes and He Died In Her Arms.

Monticello, N. Y., Dec. 24.—Although terrified by the tragic ending of the man to whom she gave fifteen years of her life, three of them a voluntary prisoner in a cramped room in the rear of his law office, Adelaide M. Branch told how Melvin H. Couch, former district attorney of Sullivan county, died in her arms after a quarrel.

It seems that Couch and Miss Branch quarreled either on Saturday night or early on Sunday morning. For the first time in three years the woman had suggested that she wished to go away for a week, over the Christmas holidays, to visit an old-time friend, Mrs. Susan M. Ostram, with whom she had lived many years ago when engaged in selling books for a living.

Couch protested. He had been ill for a week and had complained of headaches and pains about the heart. He had got behind in his work and wanted the woman to remain with him over the holidays, not only because he wanted her company, but because he wished her to help him with his correspondence, which she usually did in the evening.

Miss Branch, however, was eager to go away. She had apparently wearied of spending her days reading novels and cooking in the small room partitioned off Couch's inner office. Couch, usually genial and contented, became so excited in his protestations that Miss Branch feared for him, and she finally yielded and promised to remain with him over the holidays.

Her promise filled the aged man with happiness and he kissed her. She was seated beside him on the couch and he had his arm around her. Suddenly he gave what Miss Branch described as "a gurgling sound" and fell over on the couch.

"I had seen people die before," said the woman, "and I knew that Mel was dying. I ran for Dr. Curlette, who I knew was a brother-in-law of Mel's. When I got back he was dead. The doctor said right away that the death was due to the bursting of the aorta near the heart as the result of excitement. I knew that it was caused by our quarrel and my selfish desire to go away from him when he really needed me to care for him."

In her grief the woman hid herself in the cubbyhole off Couch's office and was there when Mrs. Couch and her daughter Louise arrived.

Mrs. Couch, though outwardly calm, was suspicious, feeling by instinct that some one had been in the room with her husband.

When finally Miss Branch opened the door and appeared she herself was almost in a frenzy of grief.

"It was my fault," she said.

"I killed him. It was my fault," she sobbed.

"Because of my hysterical condition it was found necessary to call a trained nurse to attend her."

Meantime delicacies were being sent in to Miss Branch by Sheriff Kinzie. The authorities have much sympathy for the woman and are doing their utmost to console her and to help her make arrangements to go away from Monticello quietly.

Easy To Darken

Your Gray Hair

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.
